Teacher: Enlightens People

by S. M. Benzir Ahmed

From the very beginning of life we learn. We learn how to write, how to read even how to think. These kinds of help we get from the teacher. In a word teacher is a person who taught people. It may singular, it may plural; it may younger, it may older. The learning may be textual or only oral.

Definition of teacher is different in different point of view. In one point of view shows, a baby first learns from his mother. Firstly it learns how to express itself. Another point of view says the person who teaches the child how to read the texts and to write it. But in our countries prospective we generally treat the person as a teacher who teaches a child in his or her school, college or university.

Socrates is called one of the greatest teachers of world. He belonged to today's Greece. He taught how to think better, he enlightens the minds of common and illiterate people. He was a great philosopher also.

But there was only one great teacher who really served more than the purpose of a teacher; he was the prophet Hazrat Mohammad (Sm.). He taught everything to people. He didn't miss a single part of learning. Still now he is the role model of a good teacher.

In our country there is a lack of good teachers. We have not much educated teacher which is one of the major barrier to approach to prosperity.

In the modern world the teaching method has much more changed. Once upon a time the teachers used to beat the students mercilessly to teach. But today's teaching method says, don't beat, teach with affection. Today's learning methods another important side is, teaching is a two way communication.

A good teacher must needs some good qualities. He/she must have good and clear cut knowledge on his subject. He must study regularly and read a lot on other subjects. He must be friendly and smiley so that students can come to him for discussion on his problem.

A good teacher can enlighten a nation not only a person or a group of people. Won't we get such a good teacher?
